Confirmation Day with all its possibilities for an effective emphasis of Jewish teaching and for a display of supersentimentalities is with us again. In its coming the Reform synagogue is able to greet the one ceremony that it has added to the list of ceremonies of the synagogue of which it can justly be proud. Not that it has added no other ceremonies. It has. A religion, or for that matter anything called into action time and time again, cannot possibly fail to call into being a form, a reminder, a modus operandi, and they who can keep their perspective can watch the forms harden into custom and ceremony. How often have we been asked when is the right time for the pall-bearers at a funeral to throw the gloves that they have worn as part of the paraphernalia of their office into the open grave, or is that the thing to do with these self-same gloves? And we have often thought of a blasé American Jewish community working out this form for itself and then expecting to find something in Jewish law, in the Shulchan Aruch let us say, as to the customs of the ancestors far removed, that might tell the blasé younger generation what shall be done with the gloves. Then we have the customs good and bad that the "pastorized" American rabbi must follow in the fulfillment of his functions as rabbi of the congregation, unable any more to say a single word of prayer in its own behalf. But the Confirmation rite for boys and girls who have finished a course in the Sunday school has made a place for itself in the life of modern Jewry.

Year by year we have had opportunity to notice that the custom has taken a hold not only in the avowedly Reform synagogue but has established something of a vogue in the so-called Conservative synagogue as well, except that there it has been limited to the girl graduates of the religious school, it being assumed that the boys have had their chance on Bar Mitzvah day. In this the Conservative synagogue is making up for the neglect on the part of the Orthodox synagogue. For certainly, the Bar Mitzvah service for boys, with its long drill in a chant fitted into words that the boy does not understand, has lost intellectual or religious value. And most assuredly a ceremony declaring to a boy of thirteen that he is a man, that he is responsible for himself, and allowing his father to say a blessing declaring that he is no longer—perhaps only religiously however—responsible for the lad, can have no meaning under own immediately after the Bar Mitzvah ceremony. He has nothing changed in his life. His economic independence has not been established and in the complicated and specialized—for really the two go together, a specialized society meaning the ability of all the specializations to fit together—society, it will take quite some time before the responsibility will fall from the parents' shoulders. Really the origin of the Bar Mitzvah is involved in doubt. But the very peculiar name ought to give us an inkling into its real meaning. Rabbinic literature of course knows the word Mitzvah. It is a commandment, a deed whereby merit can be won. It is a detail in the system of duties that comprise the conception of Judaism as a religion of conduct. The whole system as a study and as a guide will be indicated by the word Torah or by Mitzvoth (in the plural) and he who would carry the burden of the system is said to have accepted the yoke of the commandments or the yoke of the Torah. Naturally if the thought had been in the beginning that the boy of thirteen was a member of the community, having accepted the burden of the commandments or of the law, the term should have been either Bar Torah or Bar Mitzvoth.

We have the thought that the custom grew out of an ancient condition of early marriages. Books on the life of the East emphasize that even in this day the early marriage is part of the life of the Orient. And it was in the circumstances of the East, and in the recognition that the lad of thirteen and the girl of twelve were not too young to establish a home and take their proper place in the life and work of the community, that the lad who reached the age of thirteen was called a Bar Mitzvah, the particular Mitzvah of establishing a home. In that case the absurdity of the Bar Mitzvah ceremony in the conditions of the occident, cultural and economic, is heightened. Girls were neglected in the ceremony; they should be happy for being neglected. The Conservative synagogue is however trying to make up for the neglect of the past. We prophesy that sooner or later—most probably sooner—the Conservative synagogue will confirm boys as well.

When Conservatism comes to that day, it will have to avoid some of the blunders that we in the Reform Synagogue have made, when for one thing we took over something of protestant Christianity into our form and asked the children to make profession of their faith. It was the early mistake of those who gave Reform something of its direction that they were anxious to see in the synagogue something like what the church was. As the Christian child accepted the church, the Jewish child accepted the synagogue and its teaching not quite Jewish. The matter needs only to be stated to awaken the feeling that in Judaism it is not so at all. Judaism is not a church, it is an historic and people tradition. Children born in Jewish homes, by virtue of the birthplace and birth surroundings accept the responsibility of Judaism. They may of course later on set aside that responsibility, if they so desire, openly or sneeringly. At all events, a confirmation service in the synagogue is a confirmation service. It is intended to confirm the child in the possession of that which has been his from birth. And whenever we have anything else than this—and unfortunately we have it too often- it is due to a misunderstanding of Judaism.

The calendar connection between Confirmation and Shabuoth (though this was not always so; Samuel Hirsch, for example, had Confirmation services with the Chanukah festival) has prompted the thought that children might be pictured as pilgrims to the temple and bring their floral offerings. We have carried that far to excess. Our programmes are reminders of the old-fashioned flower books that lovers in spring carefully studied. Under this outburst of floral sentimentality we brought the good Lord pansies and forget-me-nots and roses and violets and acacia springs and amarinths and read him chapters from the lovers' anthology. Of course the rabbis changed them around a bit. The flowers had new meaning. They carried suggestions of the tree of knowledge, of the tree of sturdiness, of the flower of fidelity and finally worked into the tree of life. Very pretty, but as far away from the simple, dignified Jewish ceremony that ought to be as can be imagined.

But a confirmation service will really be effective when we shall have developed a genuine instruction in Jewish matters and continue the instruction to a time in the child's life when the lessons shall be fairly rich and complete. That means first of all more frequent sessions of our religious schools and it means in the second place a postponement of the age of Confirmation till sixteen. It cannot be made later but it should not be made earlier and pedagogues who happen also to be rabbis have agreed in this as a result of the experiences in their own schools.

To the confirmants the land over we wish a very happy day, with the prayer that its lesson and its wealth of sentiment may abide for many a blessed day. The day when the rich legacy of a past becomes consciously the child's own should stand out as one of the great days of life. May the memory of it remain as a constant star in the heavens of life, which no storm can hide and which no

When we were a small child some good Christian clergymen in our locality discovered that the age was a material one and the only way to cope with the situation was to teach the Bible and the Golden Rule in the public schools. There were hymns and Bible readings with such unrelenting fervour on the part of the educationists that you might suppose things would be different by now even to the point of a few alterations in human nature. Imagine, then, our surprise to find right here in Toronto, the Rev. Dr. Cotton telling educationists assembled in St. Aidan's Hall to promote religious teaching in the public schools, that this age is one of "materialism, love of pleasure, hatred to be reformed, contempt of law, and selfishness," and no chance for betterment without aid of the Bible taught in the public schools. The Golden Rule graduates of our own youth were among those who kept the World War going and if that was an example of practical Christianity based on a course in "do unto others what you would have them do unto you," we regard with pardonable pessimism what Dr. Cotton's programme can do for the rising generation.

There will be no compulsory reading of the Bible in the public schools of Virginia at least for the next two years, due to the determination of a rabbi, one of the personalities of Richmond, Edward N. Calisch. The story goes that the bill to make Bible reading compulsory passed the House of Delegates in Richmond before the Jews knew anything about it. When it came before the Senate Committee on Public Instruction, Dr. Calisch asked for a hearing. There were three of these hearings with large delegations of those for and against the bill and prominent representative speakers on each side. At the last hearing the bill was amended to say that each teacher was permitted instead of required to read the Bible. This passed the committee but was defeated in the Senate on the last day of the session, so that now there will be no state action for two years. Dr. Calisch's quick move at the crisis was doubtless much more effective than the usual propaganda which starts so far in advance of a project that the interest of the people sickens and dies down by the time it is really needed.

The bride wore a gown of white African satin, trimmed with rhinestones and made with court train lined with white georgette, her veil of silk tulle in cap effect with clusters of orange blossoms, lilies-of-the-valley and maiden hair fern. The maid of honour, Miss Celia Richler, wore peach georgette. The bridesmaids were Misses Molly Goldhar, of Toronto, in beet root georgette; Eva Rosenberg, of Long Branch, N.J., in rose crepe de chine; Eva Zucker, of Hamilton, in orchid georgette; Ida Richler, in orchid georgette; Eva Rosenberg, in rose georgette, and Dora Laxer, in sand georgette. All the attendants carried bouquets in Colonial style and wore hats to match their gowns. The best man was Israel Rosenberg, of New York, and the ushers were Harry Richler and Ben Albert. The train-bearers were Rebecca Rosenberg, of New York, in a frock of pink georgette, and Anna Richler, in a frock of pink crepe de chine. The little flower girls were Frances Hadler, of Toronto, and Bertha Samuels, in frocks of pink and mauve georgette. The mother of the bride wore a black lace gown, beaded, and the mother of the groom wore beaded black satin-faced canton. Assisting in the ceremony were Mrs. M. Richler and Mrs. H. B. Albert. At a dinner and reception 500 guests were present. Congratulatory messages were read from Rabbi Margolis, of the States, from the Rabbis of Toronto, Boston, Detroit, Hamilton and Philadelphia. The out-of-town guests included Rabbis Y. Gold, of San Francisco, and Y. Gold, of Boston, and Mrs. Gold, Sr., of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Havler and family, of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. J. Zucker and family, of Hamilton; Mr. and Mrs. Rober and family, of Toronto; Rabbi M. Rosenberg and Miss Eva Rosenberg, of Long Branch, N.J.; Mr. and Mrs. I. Rosenberg, of New York, and J. Crakovsky, of Toronto.

Leibovitch—Sloan

The marriage of Nadia, daughter of Mrs. Z. Sloan, to Joseph Leibovitch, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Leibovitch, was solemnized on June 17 at the Majestic Hall, Rabbis Abramowitz and Segal officiating. The bride, who was given away by her uncle, T. Glickman, wore a gown of white crepe satin trimmed with pearls. Her tulle veil was arranged with orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of orchids and roses, with shower of lilies-of-the-valley. Miss Miriam Glickman, the maid of honour, wore a gown of mauve flat crepe, and carried a sheaf of mauve sweet peas and tea roses. The bridesmaids, Misses Marion Bagan, Birdie Glickman, Betty Rubin and Pearl Webber, wore gowns in pastel shades and carried sheaf bouquets of sweet peas in all colours. The mother of the bride wore black kitten's ear crepe, draped with Chantilly lace, and the mother of the groom wore a black satin-beaded gown. The best man was Harry Leibovitch, and the ushers were Harry Sloan, Harry Klineberg, Joe Glickman and Moe Perlman. The little flower girls, Pearl Jacobs and Sallie Leibovitch, wore maize georgette frocks, and carried baskets of flowers. Sydney Leibovitch was page, in a Fauntleroy suit. About 300 guests were present at the reception. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leibovitch left for New York, Atlantic City and Washington.

Faerman—Grobstein

The marriage of Rachel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Grobstein, to Oscar Faerman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Faerman, was solemnized at the Bnai Jacob Synagogue on June 19, with Rev. Cutler and Rev. Berger officiating. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of oyster white satin, studded with crystal beads and pearls. Her veil of tulle was trimmed with lace and arranged in cap effect with clusters of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of orchids and lillies-of-the-valley. Mrs. J. G. Weinrauch, matron of honour, wore peach georgette trimmed with lace, and carried a bouquet of roses and sweet peas. The bridesmaids, who carried colonial bouquets of roses and sweet peas, were Misses Stella Faerman, in shell pink georgette, beaded in blue; Esther Goldman, in silver cloth, with silver lace; Sarah Matthews, in a French beaded gown of powder blue, and Bessie Steinberg, in nile green in boufantte fashion. The best man was Nick Grobstein, and the ushers were Dave Grobstein, Lewis Ram, Ben Faerman and Dave Steinberg. Lillian Grobstein and Frances Zelicovic, in frocks of maize taffeta, were flower girls, and carried baskets of sweet peas and roses. Mrs. S. Grobstein, mother of bride, wore an imported gown of brown crepe trimmed with Chantilly lace, and Mrs. M. Faerman, mother of groom, wore a French gown of cocoa crepe romaine. Both carried corsages of Ward roses. The gifts to the attendants were French beads to the matron of honour, small purses initialled in gold to the bridesmaids; a silver cigarette case to the best man, and nail files in gold cases to the ushers. A sit-down supper was served to about 200 guests. Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Faerman left on a three-weeks' trip to New York, Atlantic City and Boston. Going away, the bride wore a blue suit, small grey hat of moufflant with grey veil to match. On their return they will live in Montreal.

Your Curtains

EVERY HOUSEWIFE who takes pride in the appearance of her window draperies, yet despairs at the difficulty of stretching them to proper size and shape after washing, will be interested in the service rendered by our curtain department. When they come in, the curtains are first carefully measured. Then they are washed with pure soap, being handled throughout this process with utmost gentleness. While still wet, the curtains are placed in pairs on a new and ingenious drying frame which stretches them perfectly even and flat at their exact original size. This frame holds all four sides whether they are straight or ornamental, so that the edges are perfectly parallel and even the corners absolutely square. Curtains cleaned and finished in this establishment are returned shaped as perfectly as when new. We know that our work will please you. Telephone us and we will send for your curtains.

Greatest of Thrills

Shooting the St Lawrence Rapids

GREATER than high diving, or clinging to an aquaplane, or plowing through the waters in a speed boat, or even soaring the heights in an aeroplane, is the thrill of shooting the raging, roaring Rapids of the St. Lawrence River. Seven of them—each striving to outdo the others, and all forming one of the lasting memories of that trip of trips—

NIAGARA-TO-THE-SEA

You cruise through the 1000 Islands—Venice of America; then the St. Lawrence Rapids; visit Metropolitan Montreal and quaint historic Quebec. The cruise reaches the climax of its grandeur in the awe-inspiring Capes of the Saguenay Canyon—a sight that will live long in your memory. It costs less to take this trip than you probably imagine. Quite moderate rates prevail, graded in accordance with stateroom location.

Hebrew Union Professor Says Rabbi's Calling Has Real Hardships

By Dr. Abraham Cronbach

Something that is said about rabbis and rabbinic salaries in the "every Friday" column of your issue dated June 6, 1924, prompts me to make a few comments.

Social psychologists have lately challenged the assumption that money or money alone is the customary object of human toil. It is being held that money-makers, even in the commercial and industrial field, are seeking not money in itself but the power and prestige which money is supposed to confer. Self expression is also a human need which work must supply. Gatherings like the National Conference of Social Work, which is soon to convene in Toronto, never fail to emphasize this. It takes something besides money to satisfy even the sordid. With the Jew, to whom your writing ascribes good business sense, this is surely the case.

Particularly do the professions exhibit the non-monetary motivation. We grant this in the instance of artists and physicians and have always expected it of the ministry. There is indeed very little appeal except the idealistic one that the ministry can make to its followers. The only true reward of the ministry is the opportunity it offers for looking at human nature from the holiest point of view and for keeping alive that faith in the finer possibilities of man which is really what people mean when they call for faith in God.

Nine years ago at a session of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, one rabbi said to another in a private conversation: "If you do not regard me as impertinent, would you mind telling me what your salary is?" "Gladly will I tell you," was the reply. "My salary is a million dollars a year. I get twelve hundred of it in cash and the rest in the golden opportunity to love and to serve."

It is, I think, not far otherwise with the three rabbis whom your editorial singles out as examples of monetary success. Mann and Newman are both of finest idealistic texture. The chief thing about Mann is not that his salary is $20,000 a year, but that he is honest, capable, hard-working and consecrated; similarly Newman. To say nothing about these men except that their salary is so many thousands a year is to caricature and distort them. Once only have I met Tintner. He impressed me as a man of pronounced spirituality. His face and voice are such as invite friendship and confidence immediately. Thus it does happen occasionally that material prosperity and moral excellence coincide. But is it fair that we proclaim the material prosperity and obscure everything else?

Your mention of the fact that a rabbi is elected for life also needs qualification. Making this a matter of comment implies that the occurrence is rare. In the American Reform Rabbinate, election or at least service for life, is by no means rare. A very large number of the incumbents of American Reform pulpits are or have been lifelong incumbents.

The theological lecturer whom you quote as dwelling upon the hardships of the ministry was, of course, not referring to the American Reform Rabbinate. But the American Reform Rabbinate is exceptional. Outside of the American Reform Rabbinate ministerial salaries are often very low, in ever so many instances lower than those of easily trained labourers. Hosts of European rabbis and clergymen are starving or have already died of starvation, the universal calamity having fallen upon this class with unusual weight. In America itself, the Orthodox Rabbinate is by no means as well compensated as the Reform Rabbinate and even in the Reform Rabbinate there are not a few with salaries barely sufficient to meet their current needs. When speaking of salaries we should also not lose sight of the demands upon the Rabbi's purse, demands which are not always small. If all Rabbis were opulent, there would be no occasion for the old-age pension plans which have been maturing for the past ten years.

Meanwhile, the hardships mentioned in the quotation do apply even in the Reform Rabbinate of America where, generally speaking, the privations mentioned may not apply, there being other kinds of hardships than the financial. Let me mention a few of the hardships of the Rabbinate.

One of these is the task of public speaking. Trying as the ordeal is to the listeners unless the speaker is rarely gifted, it is far more trying to the speaker himself. There is not merely the gruelling preparation needed if the speaker would do his best, but also the ghastly element of chance which enters into every public address. One never knows when conditions, physical or psychological, may be fatally adverse. A speaker will find himself execrated by an audience for an address which aroused the enthusiasm of a different audience only a few hours earlier a short distance away. All of us freely criticize public speakers; more often than not our criticism is hostile and our disparagements severe. Yet very few are the physical hardships which are more painful than the detestations of an audience. The only sure way to avoid these harrowing experiences is to avoid making the speech. There is absolutely no degree of preparation or foresight that can forestall every exigency. The rabbi, however, will not and can not avoid speaking in public. It is precisely for this that the salary is paid, although the agonies of an unsuccessful address are something beyond compensation by any amount of money. Suicides are alleged to have occurred among rabbis with very high salaries.

Another hardship of the American Reform rabbi arises from the fact that his training entails a course of education much different from that of the people upon whom he depends for his salary. The result is often a painful divergence of outlook. One side fails to understand the other. That which is important from the standpoint of the congregation is unimportant from the standpoint of the rabbi and vice versa. That which the congregation pronounces good, the rabbi pronounces bad and vice versa. As a consequence, rabbis frequently lose their positions, well-paying or ill-paying, or retain their positions only at the price of crushing self-suppression. No man can be happy unless he is free to say and to do that which his conscience pronounces to be worthy. But the rabbi is, in many instances, not free in this regard. The trustees are likely to censure, humiliate and even threaten him for acts and utterances which, from the Rabbi's point of view, are the dictates of the loftiest rectitude.

Finally, there is the matter of temple attendance. In a few instances, thanks, as a rule, to the rabbi's signal abilities, services are well attended. More frequently the attendance is poor. Anyone who has ever had to appear before an audience knows the mental torture of an attendance smaller than it might have been. The life of many a rabbi is, from this cause alone, one of rarely mitigated torture.

During the past term there have been 89 students at the Hebrew Union College and perhaps again as many at the other two institutions for the education of English-speaking rabbis in America. Why can not the troubles just mentioned be allowed to account for the fact that the numbers are not larger? Many of those who enter the ministry could, with their abilities, earn equally much in other callings. Many have, indeed acquired larger incomes by leaving the ministry and entering commerce, medicine or law. In short, no motivation can be decisive in the ministry except that of heroic eagerness to spend oneself in the service of ideals. Nothing feebler than this can counterbalance the hardships of the calling even in the instances where the money compensation is apparently high.

RABBI ZLOTNIK IN TORONTO

The organization and propaganda committee of the Zionist Council in Toronto, under the chairmanship of D. S. Denberg invited Rabbi J. L. Zlotnik, of Montreal, the director of the Jewish National Fund in Canada to visit Toronto. Rabbi J. L. Zlotnik, Saturday, June 7, addressed the Chestnut Street Synagogue; Sunday, the first day of Shabuoth, the McCaul Street Synagogue, Monday the second day of Shabuoth; Bay Street Synagogue.

On Monday evening a meeting of the Council took place at the Zionist Institute with M. Gelber in the chair. Plans were discussed as to how to get all the Jewish congregations, societies and organizations of Toronto to affiliate with the Zionist Organization in order to build up the Canadian representation in the Jewish agency as required by paragraph four of the Mandate to Palestine granted by the League of Nations to the British Government.

It was decided to call a conference of the presidents and officers of all the congregations and societies for Monday, June 16, at the Zionist headquearters. On Sunday, June 15, Rabbi Zlotnik addressed the Linitzer Sick Benefit and the Keltzer Sick Benefit Society.

Monday afternoon a rally of the Hadassah workers took place at the home of Mrs. D. Dunkelman, addressed by Rabbi Zlotnik. He expressed his appreciation of the assistance given by the Canadian Hadassah in the work of the Jewish National Fund, which during the last few years increased its income from $800 during 1921 to $12,000 in 1922 and $21,000 in 1923 and collected during the first five months of the present year 65 per cent. more than during the same period of the previous year.

Rabbi Zlotnik emphasized the importance of placing boxes of the J.N.F. in every Jewish home. All present volunteered to go out on a distribution campaign during the days of June 17, 18 and 19.

On Monday night the planned conference took place at the Zionist Institute, S. Rogul in the chair. The presidents and officers of the following organizations were present: Goel Tzedek

WINNIPEG

TALMUD TORAHS' JUVENILE CARNIVAL

The Winnipeg Hebrew free schools are planning to hold a juvenile carnival on the grounds of the Jewish orphanage, Matheson Avenue, August 13-14.

The object is to raise $8,000 with which to reduce the liabilities of the Talmud Torah and its six branches in the city which give a Hebrew education to 1,200 Jewish children.

The main feature will be the coronation event to follow a street parade in which about 4,000 children will participate.

Five candidates for king and queen of the carnival are Misses Clarice Mitchell, Sarah Baker, Irene Davis, Norman Slobinsky and Eddie Parker.

Clarice Mitchell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Mitchell, Dorchester Avenue. She is a violinist and has played at many social functions, including the concert conducted by the Daughters of the Empire in the Garrick Theatre last month. Clarice is nine years of age and attends the Grosvenor Avenue school and also the Fort Rouge branch of the Talmud Torah. She expects to leave this fall for New York to study. Her father, E. D. Mitchell, is head of the Mitchell Grain Company, Limited, and other associate grain companies, and as head of the Palestine Helping Hand Fund, he raised over $40,000 in two weeks.

Other features of the carnival will be a baby and flower show, midnight banquet, home cooking contest, tags and refreshment buffets.

SISTERHOOD ANNUAL MEETING AND ELECTION

The annual meeting of the Shaarey Zedek Sisterhood was held June 4, Mrs. Maxwell Heppner presiding.

The membership report, presented by Mrs. L. Churchill, showed a total of 205 members, a gain over the previous year of 13. This committee, under Mrs. Churchill, organized a number of teams which took part in the campaign for the Federated Budget Fund.

The report of the secretary, Mrs. B. Levi, mentioned the giving of Yiddish books for the use of hospital patients, providing for the needs of the Jewish prisoners in the Penitentiary on Passover, and the presentation to the congregation of one hundred Singer prayer books, as well as a separate dozen, in a case, for use in homes during Shiva. The Sisterhood also paid for the printing of an eight-page booklet of prayers and hymns for the Friday night service. The Gift Fund, organized by the Sisterhood, made a gift to Rabbi and Mrs. Samuel of furnishings for their new home.

The house committee, under Mrs. M. H. Abremovich, kept Synagogue vestments in repair. A new carpet was laid on the platform and wire screens were provided for the confirmation ceremony. For Shovuoth the house committee has inaugurated the custom of sending cut flowers and plants for decorating the synagogue in memory of the dead. The cut flowers are sent, after service, to the hospital, and the plants are placed in the cemetery on graves of those whose friends are far away. The congregation was entertained in the Succah and the annual Succoth treat was provided for the children. Chanukah was celebrated by a party for the children of dependent Jewish families. Each child received a parcel of useful gifts as well as toys.

The report of the hospital committee, by Mrs. H. J. Samuel, showed that about 25 patients were visited each week in the General Hospital. The committee sees that patients are supplied with extra nourishment and help, which assists them to recuperate. The committee acknowledges the support of the Ladies' Bridge Club.

The entertainment committee's report, presented by Mrs. (Dr.) S. Rodin, detailed a series of gatherings and speakers' addresses at social evenings; also a symposium, contributed by five women university undergraduates, on several topics of Jewish interest; the dance in November. The entertainment committee was instrumental in obtaining a new piano for the congregational assembly room.

Mrs. Julius Adler reported on the work of the Mother's Allowance Committee. The friendly visitors had an average of 35 families under their care.

The reports of the Sunday School, the Girl Guides and Juvenile Court committees, presented by Mesdames Aaron Cohen, Joseph Wilder and A. M. Shinbane, will be reported next week.

Mrs. G. L. Lennox spoke and Miss Rose Portigal played the piano.

The following are the newly elected officers: Hon. president, Mrs. Moses Finkelstein; president, Mrs. M. Heppner; first vice-president, Mrs. S. Rodin; second vice-president, Mrs. M. H. Abremovich; recording secretary, Mrs. N. L. Green; corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. F. Cohen; treasurer, Mrs. N. J. Weidman; advisory board, Mesdames M. Finkelstein, A. H. Aronovitch, B. Levy, A. Levinson, J. N. Sternberg, M. J. Finkelstein, D. Rosen, J. Finkelman, P. Stephany, M. Goldstine. Chairmen of committees: house, Mrs. M. H. Abremovich; hospital, Mrs. H. J. Samuel; Sunday School, Mrs. Aaron Cohen; membership, Mrs. L. Churchill; friendly visiting, Mrs. Julius Adler; girl guides, Mrs. Joseph Wilder; social welfare, Mrs. C. J. Bermack; juvenile court, Mrs. A. M. Shinbane.

Just one teaspoonful for each dishwashing

LUX is so rich in pure soap, that just one teaspoonful of the satin-like Lux flakes makes the dishwater soapy all through.

One swish of the dishmop, and your dishes are sparkling and clean. No need to dry them when you use Lux. Simply rinse them out in hot water, and place them on the dish-rack to dry. Lux does not leave them streaky and cloudy, but spotless and glistening in their original beauty.

For pretty hands

And Lux is so easy on the hands. It is as pure as a fine toilet soap, and hands which have become coarsened or reddened through dishwashing with strong soap will soon be restored to the soft, smooth texture so much desired, if you use Lux in the dishpan.

You Must Place Foods Properly for Best Refrigeration

This matter of placing food in the refrigerator is a vital one—yet a few simple rules will help you greatly in getting maximum refrigeration.

Milk, cream and butter always belong on the floor or shelf immediately beneath the ice compartment. Cooked and raw meats belong on the floor of the food compartment; eggs and odorless vegetables on the intermediate shelves—and vegetables and fruit having an odor should be placed on the upper shelf.

Follow these simple rules; keep your refrigerator well filled with ice at all times—and make sure it is the purest ice, such as that delivered by this company.

MARRIAGES

Shumer-Babbin

At Mer. of England synagogue, Yetta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Babbin, was married to Elrick C. Shumer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shumer, Toronto. The bride who was given in marriage by her parents, wore a French gown of white canton crepe with pearl trimming. Her veil was held in place by a coronet of pearls and orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of sweetheart roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Miss Eva Shumer, sister of the groom, in a frock of yellow taffeta, carrying a bouquet of Ophelia roses was maid of honour, and the bridesmaids were Misses Sylvia Shapiro in powder blue georgette, Ethel Bernstein in honeydew georgette and Bernice Babbin in peach georgette. All carried bouquets of Columbia roses. Donna Neysa Brown, cousin of the groom, was train bearer. The groom was attended by Jack Lewis, and the ushers were Messrs J. Soteroff, H. Koldoff and M. Babbin. Mrs. Babbin, mother of the bride, in a French beaded black georgette gown, and Mrs. Shumer, mother of the groom, in a black sequin gown, received at the reception. Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Shumer left for a motor trip to Buffalo, Cleveland and Youngstown the bride travelling in a sand suit with hat and shoes to match and a fox fur. There were out-of-town guests from Hamilton, Rochester, Cleveland and Youngstown.

Webber-Shapiro

The wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. O. S. Kling, Brunswick Avenue, of Lillian, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Shapiro and Mac Webber. Rabbi Weinrib officiated. The bride wore white georgette, encrusted with crystal. Her veil of embroidered tulle was arranged in fan effect and caught to the head with sprays of orange blossoms. The bridal bouquet was of sweetheart roses and babies' breath with streamers of lilies-of-the-valley. Miss Esther Webber, sister of the groom, was maid of honour, frocked in sand crepe satin embroidered in steel beads. She carried Columbia roses. Rita Kling, the bride's niece, was flower girl, dressed in pink silk and carrying a bouquet of pink rosebuds and lilies-of-the-valley. Dr. L. Webber, brother of the groom, was best man. A reception was held for over one hundred guests, among whom some from out of town. Mr. and Mrs. Webber left for Detroit, Cleveland and other points, the bride wearing a frock of ashes-of-roses georgette, with canton crepe coat and French hat to match. They will live at 478 Crawford Street.

Israelson—Citron

On Sunday, June 15, the wedding was solemnized by Rev. B. Wladowsky, at the home of Mrs. S. Citron, 22 Ross, when her youngest daughter, Molly, was united in marriage to Carl C. Israelson, youngest son of Mr. N. Israelson, of Chicago, Ill. The bride wore a white back-faced crepe satin and white veil with headdress of orange blossoms and pearls. She carried a bouquet of Killarney roses and lilies-of-the-valley. The matron of honour, Mrs. M. Katzman, sister of the bride, wore a frock of black georgette, beaded and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. The bride's mother wore a dress of black flat canton crepe and carried Columbia roses. Maurice Winberg was best man. Miss Etta Kamin sang "O Promise Me." After dinner Mr. and Mrs. Israelson left for a honeymoon trip to Cleveland, Akron, Toledo and Canton and will live in Chicago.

ART EXHIBIT

From June 25 to and including July 6, the productions of a group of Toronto Jewish artists will be exhibited at 194 Beverley Street (W.C.J.L. Peretz School Building). More than one hundred paintings by S. Soboloff and M. Kayler, and a collection of sculptures by J. Dairoff are to be displayed. The artists are well known amongst local friends of art, and some of their works have already been exhibited in this and other countries and received very favourable comment.

The event will be the first of its kind not only in Toronto, but amongst Jewish artists in general.

The opening of the exhibition will be celebrated by a concert and other suitable entertainments. Our well known young Toronto pianist, Mr. M. Miller, and the not less known I. Lewine will both render various selections.

It is expected that no lover of art generally, and Jewish art in particular, will fail to visit the exhibition and also be present at the opening.

MARRIAGES

Rodin—Oretsky

The wedding took place Tuesday, at 4 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. H. Oretsky, 122 Selkirk Avenue, when their daughter, Bessie, was united in marriage to Paul Rodin. Rabbi Kahanovitch officiated. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white canton crepe. Her wedding veil was held in place by a bandeau of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses and maidenhair fern. Charlotte Oretsky, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and wore a frock of peach georgette beaded in white. The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Dr. S. Rodin. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Rodin will live in Winnipeg.

Lechtzier—Wender

The marriage took place on Tuesday, June 10 in Minneapolis, Minn., at the bride's residence, of Sunsan, daughter of Mrs. Rebecca Wender, to Samuel A. Lechtzier, son of Mr. A. H. Lechtzier, of Winnipeg. The drawing room was centered by a white satin canopy, and palms, ferns and roses arranged in wicker stands. Seats for immediate relatives were marked with tulle bows studded with marguerites. The bridegroom with his best man, J. J. Lechtzier, his brother, took their places. The wedding march was played by David Broude. The flower girls, Vivian Lechtzier and Evelyn Swartz, were gowned in pink chiffon frocks with poke bonnets to match, carried baskets of tulle and wicker filled with rose petals which were strewn in the pathway of the bride. She entered with her brother, Theodore, who gave her in marriage, wearing a gown of white crepe romaine over a foundation of chiffon with panels embroidered in seed pearls and crystals. Her tulle veil was fastened with a coronet of orange blossoms and Carrick macross lace. She carried a shower bouquet of orchids and bridal roses with streamers of lillies-of-the-valley and maidenhair fern. Her only attendant, Miss Reisa Lechtzier, sister of the groom, maid of honour, wore a gown of rose silver cloth and silver lace, bouffant style, skirt caught with French motifs, and her hat was of the same shades in georgette and valenciennes lace. She carried an arm bouquet of orchids and peach blush roses. During the signing of the register Mrs. Olga Pickering sang. A wedding dinner was served to some 75 guests, the bride's table centered with a wedding cake and decorated with a profusion of white sweet peas, white tapers in Russian silver holders and peach blush roses. Going away the bride wore a black hairline stripe tailored suit and black model hat and batik scarf. Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Lechtzier left via Chicago for California and will return via the coast to visit in Vancouver and Banff before returning to Winnipeg, where they will live. Mrs. Wender, the bride's mother, wore a beaded gown of powder blue georgette with a corsage bouquet of sweet peas, valley lilies and roses. The out-of-town guests were Mr. A. H. Lechtzier, Winnipeg; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Lechtzier and daughter, Vivian, Vancouver; Mrs. M. Halter, Mrs. S. Sager, Miss Reisa Lechtzier, Winnipeg; Theodore Wender, Des Moines; Mr. W. H. Klein, Mr. Frank Lipsy, Los Angeles; Miss Pearl Abrams, Los Angeles; and Miss Sue Freed, Miami, Fla.

Kliman—Goldstine

The marriage took place Wednesday, June 11, at 2 p.m., at the residence of her parents, 123 Mayfair Avenue, of Ruby Hannah, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Goldstine, and Dr. Frank E. Kliman, of Winnipeg. Rev. Herbert J. Samuel officiated. The bride, who entered the drawing room on the arm of her father, to the wedding march from Lohengrin, wore ivory crepe meteor, beaded in cut crystals, the design running from the shoulders in slender panel effect and forming a massive floral pattern at the hem. A narrow girdle was caught on the left side and finished in long cut crystal tassels. Her veil of silk net was held by a crown of orange blossoms worn by her mother at her wedding. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Mrs. Irvine J. Goldstine, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honour and wore a peach georgette gown, draped, and a black picture hat. Her bouquet was of Ophelia roses and orchid sweet peas. Gordon Kliman, brother of the groom, was best man. Mrs. Max Goldstine, mother of the bride, was gowned in black Spanish lace draped over black flat crepe. She wore a black mohair hat trimmed in stripped ostrich and corsage of Columbia roses and orchid sweet peas. Mrs. A. Kliman, mother of the groom, wore black crepe georgette, beaded in black iridescent beads over black satin, and a picture hat of tagel straw and mohair. Her corsage bouquet was also of Columbia roses and orchid sweet peas. A buffet luncheon was served in the dining room, where the bridal table was arranged with smilax and wedding bells falling from the chandelier to the four corners of the table, which was centered by the wedding cake ornamented by bridal roses. Dancing followed. Going away, the bride wore a French costume of blue and sand figured crepe Rodier and model hat of matching sand silk straw trimmed in ribbon, and a wrap of black satin. Dr. and Mrs. Kliman left to go by way of the Lakes to the Eastern States, stopping in Toronto, Montreal, New York and Boston.
